“ I love you mommy!! I showed Xander last night your butterfly kisses and Eskimo kisses and how when I was little you would look at me and say do I have anything in my teeth? And I would put my teeth together and say your teeth are really fine, only you knew what I said but it became our joke! I just want to hug you so bad. Only you knew how to make us better no one will ever love me like you do. Ask Jesus to watch over my brother he needs you to mom you know how sensitive he is but you would be so proud it's usually me who has to be the strong one but this time it's jason! Let him know your proud and you see him mom! We love you more than anything!

“ Bendy you were the most kind, caring, loving woman I have ever known. If someone didn't had just met you I am sure they were wondering what you wanted from the going out of your way to be do kind but when it all came down to it you just wanted to make sure everyone was happy and healthy always putting yourself last. The love you had for Jason and Missy I cannot even put into words and I know your grandkids put that extra twinkle in your eyes. God went out of his way to make you I just wish he allowed you to stay longer. I don't talk to Jason much since we were kids but I promise you to help you watch over Missy, Jeremy, Xander, Kayla, Maraha, Mason, Major and Johnwayne. I know you loved them all. I hope you realized how much they loved you right back. We all did. I'm sure you're watching down from heaven right now. Yes, you got cheated out of life but you are out of pain now. No more chemo, radiation, worrying just keep watching over us and be waiting at the gate for us like I'm sure you're mommy, daddy and all other loved ones and friends of yours who had passed earlier. I bet it was a glorious homecoming and especially your daddy was so happy to see you! Until you lead me through to that gate I will always love you and smile when I think of you or hear your name. I love you so very much Bendy,
Love, Julie (wireman) Bolser
