“ I remember Uncle John working at the South End and Grandma living in a brick house above there. Uncle John brought in an intercom machine and I helped him get it set up. He had one at the bar and I communicated with him several times when I would stay with Grandma. He would ring in and check on us. He was afraid someone would rob the bar and that would be a means of getting help for him and Arnold as well. He liked to garden. Most of all he loved his chickens. He is the last of our Mother's siblings. He will be missed.
